

Jump jamming in Casebrook

Fitness fun: Casebrook Intermediate student Georgia Rossiter, 12, is helping younger children at her former school keep fit and active through the Jump Jam Programme she runs at Cotswold School. Georgia started the programme during term two for her Casebrook homework assignment aimed at getting students involved in meaningful after school activities. She said running the programme was a lot of fun.

"The young children have so much fun being active. There is no need for Cotswold teachers to go to the gym – they can just come to Jump Jam." Georgia gives up her own time every week to run the programme for over 60 Cotswold children and often invites Cotswold graduates and her younger sister, Jaimee, to join her on stage.
