

Young gardeners: Cotswold Primary School children have been rolling up their sleeves in the garden with the arrival of warmer weather. Senior pupils were turning over pea straw last week in their lunch hour, while juniors helped pick beetroot and leeks. Aimed at encouraging vegetable growing know-how and can-do, Cotswold Primary's garden club and its no-fuss garden beds are led by dedicated teachers Liz Laphorne and Aaron Skerrett. Produce from the garden is sold every Thursday afternoon throughout the fourth and first school terms, with proceeds returned to the gardening venture to buy plants and equipment.
